

Seeing stars:

DAYTONA BEACH FILM FESTIVAL

Reviews are in for film fest

By JEFF FARANCE
FILM CRITIC

6 p.m. "The New Urban Cowboy," ★★★★★^{1/2}: This documentary would be well-done and fascinating even if it weren't set in DeLand, where developer Michael E. Arth bought up dozens of dilapidated homes in a drug district, renovated them and turned the area into a clean, crime-free garden district. Anyone with any connection to DeLand can revel in familiar faces and places, but anyone with cinematic sense can enjoy a well-photographed film of a fascinating story.

The Daytona Beach News-Journal

8E Friday, October 5, 2007